Valve Corporation delivers a sad news to its fans that it will be the event of the year at the Electronic Entertainment Expo (E3) 2012 and the next big title in the series of games, Portal 2 is coming as a puzzle game. It will be played in a first person view and the main character of the game will be a portal gun. The hardware required is a keyboard and mouse and a PC with a video card that has shader programs enabled. I was intrigued by this game as I like shooting the games now-a-days and it is not there yet. I expected that the third episode of the game would come out this year. The first two episodes of the game has not been released to the public yet. Quick Solution: un install and reinstall of FPUserProductKey may fix the issue, in my case it does. Solved: I've experienced this issue to be solved with changing the garbage setting in Region & Language menu to "English". It's a great idea to select the "English" when you need to play a game in a foreign language, but in this case, you have to use English, since you didn't use this keyboard before the issues came. By removing some lines in HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\WOW\Settings\Gameplay\InstallationPath So here is the most comprehensive solution I know and found by using Google. It seems that you don't need to be a superuser, by changing a system setting, you will get new keyboard by play and you won't have to reinstall the game every time you're not able to use your old keyboard anymore. The user have to reboot their computer. This will be a very long process if the user's computer is not fresh. The system should not have any other important application running in the background.
