Top 5 Places to Drink in Brazil Join me on a European vacation with my new friend Charlotte from Brazil. We're going on a trip to explore the culture and food of this amazing country. I'm here in Blumenau, a city that doesn't have too many tourist attractions but has a very special atmosphere that makes me feel like I'm on a beach. It's one of those perfect cities to live in, where you can meet new people easily. Now that I have the information I need from my nice hotel (next to the city center) and done some research before, it's time for my next stop! 5. WINE WALKS It's the perfect opportunity to relax and walk the city drinking delicious wine in the warm Brazilian sun with the tunes of a flamenco guitarist in my ears. We start at Plataforma do Veu, one of my favorites because it's so close to the beach. After enjoying a few glasses of wine and listening to music, we move to Fluminense, a good wine to experience in Brazil. They say that wine is like "a spice to the food," and

Sponge: The further along we go, the more fun adventure concepts become. An early scene gives way to a thursday morning meeting at the local Mill, where the townsfolk are discussing a mission to Grondar. In the beginning, we meet the core team, but we catch a more interesting fly-on-the-wall look at the personalities. Certainly, any adventure that allows the PCs to sit back and listen for their name to be called is worth a look. NPC Summaries: Ronald Lewdek - The Chief of Grondar is a sort of geriatric necromancer, serving under the three undead slavers. I am not sure why Grondar is so esteemed a haven for slavers, but he is. He is pompous, yet charming, and volunteers to lead the expedition on the latter condition that he gets to play host to the meeting. The other two present are more on the level of grunts. Both are fairly bland in personality, though the mercenary recruiter has a minute reason for her latest offering. Possession Clerk - A stumpy little guy with a dark complexion, he is joined by a gnome and a human, who are in cahoots. They push for quick jobs that will bring quick money, and they talk him into selling a bunch of gremlin products. Promising a poor customer a debt-relief course, he turns out to be doing a follow-the-money sting on him. Costumer - A young woman, she shops around for a stylish jacket to wear with a short dress, only to find that all the items with her size are all “breached” and sold by anyone outside of the actual store. She then buys something for a higher cost, complete with verbal rejection. Gremlin Recruiter: The gnome pushes her to a motel, where he seems to be looking to offer the gnome’s services to any slavers there, but is actually there to entrap any gnomes she sends. He’s not terribly stealthy, yet there is a folded stick of dynamite behind his ear,
