MP3Gain 6.0 software program tool that works on all versions of MP3 and different audio encodings, now gratis for non-profit and non-commercial use. Mp3Gain Software package Mp3Gain is a powerful audio converter that allows you to convert audio files from one format to another. It is an ideal solution for converting large files in batches. Currently, it is compatible with multiple popular audio formats such as WAV, MP3, OGG, FLAC, and WMA. Among its numerous features, you will be able to choose a file structure for your new files that you want to create, as well as the encoding quality you prefer. Aside from its easy-to-use interface, this converter is highly customizable and can be integrated with one of the most advanced media managers, such as MediaMonkey. Furthermore, you can use it to create a playlist by simply drag and dropping your files into the playlist window. Because it works on every operating system out there, you can even convert files that are stored on external devices. Supported Audio Formats As mentioned earlier, this software supports various audio formats. Among these, the most popular ones include WAV, MP3, OGG, FLAC, and WMA. WAV It can convert WAV files to MP3, WMA, and OGG. The target output format is chosen by you when it is time to save your files. MP3 You can convert MP3 files to MP3, WMA, and OGG formats, just like WAV. The MP3 encoder can be customized to your liking. While MP3 encoding, you can easily choose the sample rate. OGG This file extension lets you convert OGG files to MP3, WMA, and OGG. However, you can also use the "Create New Folder" option to select where your files will be saved. FLAC This file extension lets you convert FLAC files to MP3, WMA, and OGG. You can customize your output files by selecting the sample rate and number of channels. WMA You can convert WMA files to MP3, WMA, and OGG. You can easily select the number of channels to go along with the target output format. Create New Folder As mentioned earlier, MP3Gain allows you to create a

This is a solemn day. I got all choked up when the theme for this month's challenge was a milestone, the 20th anniversary of the birth of a child, and I started thinking about how far my girls have come. I don't know how many more times they will fly, or where they will live, but I think it's safe to say that they have a good life, compared to most of the kids who grow up in poverty, or in shanty towns in third world countries. And yes, I am blessed. So, in the spirit of 20 years, I thought I'd play with the colours, which is the way I felt about some of those milestones. I had one happy child, who's only other significant milestone was turning one, and then I had two kids, one who turned two, one who turned one, so I don't really have a lot of experience or training in making a milestone card for one child. I think I cheated a bit, I knew I wanted to stick with the colours of the Bluebird, but I also knew I'd never seen a card done in these colours before, so I had to go and find something that would inspire me. The first thing I thought of was the card from Avery's birthday party where the birds were all out in the landscape. I did get a bit carried away with it, and used some glitter paper and some die cut elements for the wings and tail. But, I have to admit, I had no idea what I was doing when I made this, I just copied the other card.

One of the most profound things I discovered this month was that of the babies that I know of in our church, each one have either been raised by missionaries
