A series of bimetallic nickel/gold clusters on a gold-supported silica-immobilized Pd(111) surface was investigated for the asymmetric hydrogenation of isobutene. The highest activity was observed with a Pd(111)/Au(111) cluster. The cluster sites can be assigned as [Ni-Au] and [Au-Au]. The presence of gold in the cluster significantly increases the activity. The activity increased from the [Ni-Au] to the [Au-Au] site with decreasing gold content. These results are consistent with the nature of a small gold atom having a high affinity for hydrogen. #set($page = $context.getSite().getPage()) OpenEmitter - Server Engine Backend
