Q: How to add a predicate to the Where clause of a linq query to be called when writing an expression? I have a LINQ query with a where clause which contains a lambda expression inside the where clause of the query. I would like to add a lambda expression to the where clause in a subsequent LINQ query that I wish to write inside the lambda expression (which will be the predicate of the original query). The following code is simplified for demonstration purposes, but shows my point: var list = from v in data where v.Age > 20 select v.Age; var list2 = from v in data where v.Age > 20 select v.Age * 2; var list3 = from v in data where v.Age > 20 select v.Age; var list4 = from v in data where v.Age > 20 select v.Age; foreach (int i in list) Console.WriteLine(i.ToString()); foreach (int i in list2) Console.WriteLine(i.ToString()); foreach (int i in list3) Console.WriteLine(i.ToString()); foreach (int i in list4) Console.WriteLine(i.ToString()); This code prints: 20 40 20 20 Now, it can be done in other languages (e.g. Java) but I would like to do it in C#. I have already tried to use a local lambda expression, like so: var list2 = from v in data 2edc1e01e8

If you are looking for a reliable smartphone that has incredible features and works well with your other devices, this is a great option. In this article, we will show you the most important things that you need to consider when buying a new phone. What are the must-have features for a smartphone? 1. Hello world! My name is Leo and I'm looking for work! I have a few interesting ideas for new games and apps, but to fully develop them, I need some quick money! I don't have enough time and I can't afford to waste any more time looking for jobs that are not paying enough. But I'm sure you know how difficult it is to find good jobs on the Internet! That's why I've decided to create some quick online jobs for you! I have no idea what kind of work I will need, but I do know that I will be glad if you just send me a small part of your time to test something for me. I'll work for you and then you'll send me my money and I'll send you my work! Of course, I need your help to test the app and also to give me feedback. The pay will be enough to get me to work and if I can
